The GERMAN-NORDIC YOUTH PHILHARMONIC is an international youth orchestra whose work takes place in the form of orchestral courses in Berlin. The annual German-Nordic Orchestral Week goes back to the initiative of conductor Andreas Peer Kähler, who has been the orchestra's artistic director since its initial gathering during the turn of the year 1981/1982. The orchestra brings together young musicians from all over the world, predominately university students, but there are also aspiring professionals and students from schools who are contemplating a career as musicians. The orchestra's core is traditionally made up of both German and Scandinavian musicians, but the orchestra's line-up has become more international over the last years. Since 2021 and every year in June the GERMAN-NORDIC YOUTH PHILHARMONIC also organizes a chamber orchestra project with a final (family) concert at the Philharmonie – in collaboration with Kammerorchester Unter den Linden which is specialized in education work.
